

Nuclear Medicines Australia (NMA) is an association for industry, organisations and professionals working across the nuclear medicine and molecular imaging value chain. Our vision is to ensure every Australian who needs nuclear medicine has timely access to safe, high quality and innovative diagnostic and therapeutic services.

Benefit for your organisation

- Strategic representation with a strong network of parliamentarians, departments, regulators, funders and peak health bodies to advance nuclear medicine priorities.
- A structured voice in the development of national policy, regulation and funding settings for radiopharmaceuticals, theranostics and emerging nuclear technologies through participation in working groups.
- Support to embed high standards of governance, quality, ethics and transparency in nuclear medicine services and industry partnerships.
- Enhanced corporate profile through participation in industry forums, policy roundtables, media and thought leadership activities focused on nuclear medicine.
- Be part of the direction of NMA by contributing to the inaugural strategic plan (2026-2028)

Impact on patients and the health system

- Collaborative advocacy with patient organisations, professional colleges and broader health alliances to understand patient journeys and barriers to nuclear medicine access.
- Opportunity to work directly with consumer groups and government on models of care, access frameworks and funding reforms that improve outcomes for people needing nuclear medicine.
